This matter is before the Court on petitioner's motions for leave to appeal in forma pauperis ("IFP") and motion in arrest of judgment (Filing Nos. 11, 13 and 14). On July 18, 2011, the Court dismissed petitioner's habeas corpus claims because the Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction and entered judgment against him (Filing Nos. 8 and 9). Petitioner thereafter filed a timely Notice of Appeal (Filing No. 10).

I. Motions for Leave to Appeal In Forma Pauperis

Petitioner is a nonprisoner who has previously been granted leave to proceed in forma pauperis ("IFP") (Filing No. 4). Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 24\(a\)\(3\) states:

(a) Leave to Proceed in Forma Pauperis . . . .

(3) Prior Approval. A party who was permitted to proceed in forma pauperis in the district-court action, or who was determined to be financially unable to obtain an adequate defense in a criminal case, may proceed on appeal in forma pauperis without further authorization, unless the district court -- before or after the notice of appeal is filed -- certifies that the appeal is not taken in good faith or finds that the party is not otherwise entitled to proceed in forma pauperis and states in writing its reasons for the certification or finding[.]

Id. The Court finds that because petitioner was previously given leave to proceed IFP, he may now "proceed on appeal in forma pauperis without further authorization" in accordance with Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 24.

II. Motion for Certificate of Appealability

On July 25, 2011, the Court entered a Memorandum and Order giving plaintiff until August 22, 2011, to file a motion for certificate of appealability and brief in support (Filing No. 12). In response to this Memorandum and Order, petitioner filed a motion in arrest of judgment, which the Court liberally construes as a motion for certificate of appealability (Filing No. 13). Before a petitioner may appeal the dismissal of a petition for writ of habeas corpus, a "certificate of appealability" must issue. Pursuant to the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 ("AEDPA"), the right to appeal such a dismissal is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c), which states:

(c)(1) Unless a circuit justice or judge issues a certificate of appealability, an appeal may not be taken to the court of appeals from—

(A) the final order in a habeas corpus proceeding in which the detention complained of arises out of process issued by a State court;

(2) A certificate of appealability may issue under paragraph (1) only if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right.

(3) The certificate of appealability under paragraph (1) shall indicate which specific issue or issues satisfy the showing required by paragraph (2).<sup>1</sup>

A certificate of appealability may issue only if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right. See 28 U.S.C. § 2253\(c\) \(2\). Such a showing requires a demonstration “that reasonable jurists could debate whether (or, for that matter, agree that) the petition should have been resolved in a different manner or that the issues presented were adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further.” Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citing Barefoot v. Estelle, 463 U.S. 894 (1983) (defining pre-AEDPA standard for a certificate of probable cause to appeal)).

<sup>1</sup> Similarly, Fed. R. App. P. 22\(b\), as amended by AEDPA, indicates that in an action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254, a notice of appeal triggers the requirement that the district judge who rendered the judgment either issue a certificate of appealability or state the reasons why such a certificate should not issue. See generally Tiedeman v. Benson, 122 F.3d 518, 521 (8th Cir. 1997).

"Where a district court has rejected the constitutional claims on the merits, the showing required to satisfy § 2253(c) is straightforward: The petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court's assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong." Slack, 529 U.S. at 484. Similarly, if the district court denies a petition for writ of habeas corpus on procedural grounds without reaching the underlying constitutional claims on the merits:

[A] COA should issue when the prisoner shows, at least, that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right and . . . would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling . . . . Where a plain procedural bar is present and the district court is correct to invoke it to dispose of the case, a reasonable jurist could not conclude either that the district court erred in dismissing the petition or that the petitioner should be allowed to proceed further. In such a circumstance, no appeal would be warranted.

Id.

The Court has carefully reviewed the record and petitioner's motion (Filing No. 13). Petitioner has failed to demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find this Court's ruling debatable or wrong. For the reasons stated in its July 18, 2011, Memorandum and Order (Filing No. 8), the Court declines to issue a certificate of appealability.

IT IS ORDERED:

1. Petitioner's motion for leave to appeal IFP (Filing No. 11) is granted. Petitioner's duplicative motion for leave to appeal IFP (Filing No. 14) is denied as moot.

2. Petitioner's motion in arrest of judgment (Filing No. 13), construed as a motion for certificate of appealability, is denied without prejudice to reassertion before the Eighth Circuit.

3. The clerk of the court shall provide the Court of Appeals a copy of this Memorandum and Order.

DATED this 26th day of August, 2011.
